Tenorshare Data Recovery Standard is a straightforward and effective application that comes in handy for users who need to recover files from media storages such as USB flash drives, mobile phones or MP3 / MP4 players, to name a few. Quite interesting is that the program provides six data recovery modes you can choose from namely Deleted, Formatted, Partition, Raw, Resume and Wizard Recovery. This way, you will get back your important files and folders from various partitions and removable devices, irrespective of the file system they are converted to, be it FAT12, FAT16, FAT32 or NTFS. The left panel of the application allows you to choose the recovery mode you want to use. In case you don't know which one suits your needs, you can select the 'Wizard Recovery' mode. It displays five different file types you might want to recover such as photo, audio, video, document and e-mail. However, if you want to scan a specific folder location, removable devices or the Recycle Bin for various files, no matter its format or name, you can check the 'All File Types' radio button. The other recovery modes allow you to choose the partition or the removable device you want to scan, then display all the found files along with their directory path. By accessing the 'Resume Recovery' mode, you are able to restore data from previously saved scan results. Simply browse to the desired files and resume the recovery process without rescanning. All things considered, Tenorshare Data Recovery Standard proves to be steady and reliable solution when it comes to recovering files from formatted, corrupted or resized partitions without altering their output quality. You can look at the web as your convenient access to the universe of information, but when it comes to Windows OS, that can also be referred to as a problem that is growing larger and larger with the time passing by. When your system is unable to open a particular webpage, you might think that you have a big problem to deal with. However, it is actually more than that because it is the time to look into some tips or tricks for those who are going through the same ordeal as you might be. In this article, we will look into several possible Windows errors that users might experience when they are trying to view a particular website. When you try to open a website like Google, Facebook or any other that is accessible through your web browser or through a particular desktop application, you might get the error no connection. Sometimes, the error code 0x80070490, error 0x800705b5 or error 0x800705b9 might pop out on your screen. That is the reason why many people feel frustrated about opening such websites on their Windows computer. Basically, there are two reasons that you might experience these errors. The first is that the connection to the Internet might not be able to provide the required speed to allow you to access that particular website. Also, there could be a problem with the web browser or desktop application that you are using. You can always choose another web browser as well as a different desktop application and try to open the website you are looking for. In addition to that, it might be a problem about the different types of browsers, so you have to follow this article and make sure that you use a compatible web browser that is enabled for opening such websites. High Speed Internet Connection If you are able to load a website and see the content of that website, it means that the Internet connection is working fine and there is no issue about the speed of Internet. Also, it is important to know that there might be a problem regarding the speed of Internet with your Internet Service Provider. You could switch Internet Service Providers and try to connect to the Internet again and check whether you are able to see the same website that you saw before. If you find that the problem is not going away, you need to ask your ISP provider for some technical support so that they can provide you with a solution. Browser Compatibility If you have a web browser that is compatible with that particular website or you have different web browsers and you find that you are unable to see the website, 6a5afdab4c
