EDIT The reason for the reverse order is that the providers are now available on clients and I want the list to be sorted from highest to lowest. A: Collections.sort is a static method. It expects an array or collection to sort. However, you pass it a List. Use Collections.sort(List) instead, or Collections.sort(List); A: Arrays.sort() can accept a List. If you want your order reversed (usually to find the lowest value), you want Collections.sort(List). A: If you want the worst data provider in position zero, as compared to the following order: x,y,z the following is equivalent to what @JJP mentioned: Collections.sort(Arrays.asList(Collections.sort(positionOrdered.getProviders())));
