Shot types and ball flight — as well as player balance and overall direction — are affected by this technology. Every touch on the ball is different, depending on how the player lands, the trajectory of the ball, and the type of touch. Contact with the ball results in a wealth of realistic behavior. From kicking the ball like a veteran pro to keeping it under control like a talented young player, every touch on the ball is different, depending on how the player lands, the trajectory of the ball, and the type of touch.
