I have told a lot of my friends how much I do love the new street signs. They love them, too. "When we were young, signs always said: 'No trespassing'; and then, 'If you don't want to go this way, go around'. Why don't they say 'If you don't want to go this way, drive around the block'?" This little glitch is kind of a bummer, but also humbling as I realize the error was in my hand and not at the intersection of street and sidewalk. We've seen that a lot of people recognize the error, but the sentiment of the error's revelation is universal: many people enjoy the new signs. In the case of, say, "No trespassing" a few questions arise. Why is it even on the sign? And if the answer seems obvious to the signposters, why don't they say that and keep the old one? Some signs are prominent targets for vandalism and the new design is also more durable. And in some places the new signs have been "rotated" and need to be listed sideways. Street signs have been around for a long time. No matter how far the cities from which they come you can find examples of directional and other highway signs through the ages: "The dawning of the 20th century heralded even greater changes as signs began to proliferate and to change, to urban motorists." The proliferation began even before automobiles to a large extent. As early as the 1840s, carpenters and masons were carving directional signs into exterior sidewalks, Ss. 2, 3, and 4, showing whether to take a right, a

Bootcamp - Advance Mission Capsule Grungelade Outpost
Overlooking the East Fringe Spaceport, Grungelade is an outpost consisting of a single building that houses two small shuttlepads. The outpost is isolated and fairly remote, but in the eyes of the galaxy, Grungelade is its most high-profile client. After providing funds and personnel to the client, the Knight Company has made frequent visits to this outpost to check on the project. Here are the stats for a few of the Knight Company's properties. +6966: Killed Fighting the Great Dragon +7226: Killed The God of Trading +7233: Killed The Mother of Underlurker +7257: Killed Enemy Clearing Strategy (full set) +7279: Killed Enemy Clearing Strategy (full set) +7306: Killed Helming Blackacre +7351: Killed Enraged Saurian +7619: Killed Addict +7674: Killed Portal Virus +7708: Killed Opposition Leader +7829: Killed Famous Rival +7964: Killed Unknown Agents

Grungelade is an isolated outpost consisting of a single building, with two small shuttlepads and a communications relay station. Most of the time it is unmanned and commonly controlled remotely by a Knight Company operations officer. Recent Knight Company exploration has discovered a network of large tunnels that lead a long distance into the hillside. Some tunnels leading to the tunnels are open, while others are sealed off with a three-by-three grid of small concrete boxes. This level of box in use is sufficient to detonate on impact with the boxes. On the surface, it's possible to detect some of the smaller tunnels using the International Space Station. Zooming in on the small shuttlepads and the terminal will allow access to a few clues as to the nature of this client and its organization. The terminal has a number of logs that can be accessed by using a terminal in a Knight Company vessel to access this facility, but the majority of the logs will require a UFO to make it to the terminal. Using the information below, each hidden shuttlepad and terminal can be identified and mapped. The best time to run this mission is when there is little traffic to this client. Maps and images can be found in the epilogue. + 7207 Hidden Shuttlepad, Reinforced Bunker

Bluravity is a 2D gravity platformer featuring a small block protagonist that must traverse the levels of his ship, collecting stars. Bluravity uses customizable color and physics systems which can be used to create different challenges. With over 8 levels to complete, players will find a variety of gameplay modes that will force them to think outside the box. Inspired by early platformers, the Bluravity engine is built on the simplicity and speed of a game that needs to play smooth and fast. Bluravity is the most simplistic platform game on the App Store. With the same character, difficulty, and length, the levels will never get stale. BUILD THE UNIVERSE Every level of Bluravity can be built using the same tools and technology that made Asteroids and Tetris famous. Use blocks to construct platforms, walls, tunnels and even moveable bridges. Players are not limited to just blocks; anything can be added to the level. This core formula has kept a lot of games so simple over the years but Bluravity feels like a game that has been designed from the ground up to be easy to pick up and play but also hard to master. TIRED OF PLATFORMS? NO WONDER All levels of Bluravity are 2D, but because the game is built on a grid, players can scroll through the levels as if they were on a 2D map, as if they were in an old platformer. This makes it easier to maneuver, visualize where he needs to go, and see if there are any shortcuts. No more tedium; no more trying to scour through an enormous 3D level to find the exit. BECOME A MASTER BLOCKMASTER To allow for even more unique gameplay, Bluravity allows for players to personalize their character. Use the paintbrush to color your character as red, blue, yellow, green, or whatever color you want. Use the physics slider to create walls, ceilings, and gravity. Change the physics sensitivity to control your character's movement. To make it even more challenging, gravity will change from level to level. Complete levels to unlock stars in your in-game score and level up. An ultimate goal is to unlock all 8 levels while still being able to add your own.
