This subproject is one of many research subprojects utilizing the resources provided by a Center grant funded by NIH/NCRR. The subproject and investigator (PI) may have received primary funding from another NIH source, and thus could be represented in other CRISP entries. The institution listed is for the Center, which is not necessarily the institution for the investigator. The long-term objective of this proposal is to obtain a better understanding of the differential regulation of gene expression and the function of proteins in mammalian sperm, and ultimately to elucidate the molecular events involved in fertilization and early embryogenesis. In a broader context, we are looking for a mechanistic explanation for how the early cell divisions in an embryo arise from a single fertilized cell. Tony Cartalucci, Contributor Activist Post The Wikileaks organization has released a high-profile diplomatic cable exposing how the US State Department was enlisted in helping "Pulitizers for Change" in Venezuela organize an event granting Hillary Clinton's friend Alan Gross the "Pulitizer" of the Year 2009 for his work in nuclear nonproliferation. While the event was ostensibly a reward for Gross' work, the Clinton-Gore years of the US government have shown time and time again what such "rewards" were actually used for. The US State Department even penned an article for the event promoting Gross as the true champion of US foreign policy, saying, "
