To determine oxygen transport to the fetus during the third trimester, we estimated the oxygen content of the umbilical vein with reference to the venous oxygen content of the mother and, using the product: QF ratio, calculated the amount of oxygen transported to the fetus. An average of 5.1 liters of oxygen per minute was transported to the fetus during labor and only 1.9 liters was transported during cesarean section.Efficacy of oral misoprostol in the treatment of first-trimester pregnancy loss. To study the efficacy of oral misoprostol in the treatment of early pregnancy loss. A prospectively randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled trial was performed to evaluate the efficacy of misoprostol in the treatment of first-trimester pregnancy loss. One hundred forty-eight women with first-trimester pregnancy loss were enrolled. The effect of misoprostol on pregnancy loss was calculated as the difference in the number of miscarriages and ectopic pregnancies between the misoprostol and placebo groups. The Kaplan-Meier method was used to calculate the efficacy of misoprostol. The Kaplan-Meier estimates were corrected to confound with gestational age. The initial follow-up was 4 weeks. If pregnancy continued, the next follow-up was 8 weeks and then every 2 weeks until 20 weeks of gestation. Clinical pregnancies occurred in 33 of 74 (44.5%) women in the misoprostol group and in 14 of 74 (19.2%) in the placebo group. Differences between the two groups were significant at the 4-week follow-up (P =.003), but differences were not significant at the 8-week follow-up. The estimate of efficacy, adjusted to the gestational age, was higher in the misoprostol group (27/74, 36.5%) than in the placebo group (7/74, 9.5%) (P
