The Government's new tax system for small businesses The new tax system will apply from 2 July 2015 - although many are already starting to make significant changes now. This article looks at the new tax system for small businesses. The new system replaces the existing accounting period or taxation year, instead of the current annual tax calculation system. There are a number of benefits associated with the new system. Guaranteed Protection for next year Small businesses are now guaranteed that what was reported in 2014/15 will still apply for 2015/16, no matter what happens to the ATO income tax rates in the second half of this year. It also removes some of the pressure on the ATO to move the system forward as it doesn't have to wait for the tax changes in the 2015/16 financial year to take effect. Easy Filing There are a number of changes to the small business filing process, which are being phased in over time in the next few months. The first is the online small business franchisee e-file software for clients who file their annual tax return electronically, being released on 8 June 2015. This provides a useful tool for receiving electronic tax returns, with compliance and accounting features built in. More flexibility Business owners will be able to move business assets,
