in debian/ubuntu, the package you need is obexftp. you can type sudo apt-get install obexftp. this package is supported in our changelogs so while it doesnt specifically fix the problem, its at least there to assist. download the latest version of nokia pc suite and then run the nokia pc suite configuration utility. if it does not detect the mobile phone device, click the help icon. you might need to perform a factory reset of the mobile phone. if a factory reset does not help, then you need to install and run the obexftp package to communicate the mobile phone. this you why we need to understand what the problem is, and solve it before starting trying to fix it. it can be a problem with the phone, your computer, or the connection. you may need to check to make sure the phone is plugged into a good power socket and that the battery is charged fully. youre also safe to try restarting the phone. the update process can take around 90 minutes depending on the speed of your internet connection, the speed of your phone, and the speed of the servers used by nokia.com. to check the status of the update, click check for updates from your phone homepage. downloading may take a long time depending on your internet connection and the speed of your phone. before you can troubleshoot it, you need to be able to upload files to the internet. once that is done, you can try connecting the phone using the usb cable. if it can detect it (see details on page 2), you know that the problem is somewhere in the cable. it might also be a problem with the phone connection. this is most likely because the phone may be doing something that makes it look like its connected to another device (other computer or mobile phone), even though it's not. try unplugging the usb cable and reconnecting it if you need to. sometimes removing the battery allows devices to connect correctly. you could try rebooting your phone. if these troubleshooting methods dont work, then try checking the update again using the " check for updates" button from your phone's homepage. youll need to be connected to the internet with a good enough speed to download the update quickly. make sure that you have enough battery power.

the next window will list the detected devices. sometimes a device that is not compatible with nokia pc suite will be detected. you can see the connected mobile accessory in the final step of the get connected setup process. a demo is available to watch. you can open the demo by marking the box on the last step of the wizard. you can use itunes or other third-party software to transfer data. the thing with itunes is that it tends to be a little clunky. and if youve used itunes to transfer data in the past, youll know how that goes. if youre more in the mood for a bit of terminal, youre better off using nokia pc suite over itunes. for those of you who werent around for nokia pc suite on symbian, its basically a way of storing your phone content on your pc. it gives you the option to transfer or sync your content to your pc. once youve updated your phone with symbian anna, you can also use pc suite ovi suite. the first time you plug your phone into your pc, it should take you through the ovi setup assistant. this will ask you a series of questions. once you answer them, ovi suite will install itself onto your computer. once it does, youll see your phone appear as a drive on your computer. this can take a while. once it does, you can access your phone content and store it anywhere on your computer. youll be prompted for permissions to allow your pc to access your phone content. you can then play or sync that content back to your phone. pc suite ovi suite isnt actually a replacement for nokia pc suite. it simply gives you the ability to access your phone content on your pc. if youre not interested in doing that, you can use other software like nokia connect to do the same thing. pc suite ovi suite has the advantage of being a free application. and with the latest update, it also has greater integration with windows vista. for those of you who want to be able to use your phone as you use your computer, pc suite ovi suite is for you.
