The series follows the Rashidun caliphate when the second Caliph Umar Ibn Al-Khattab (may Allah be pleased with him) is in full obedience to the Prophet and a strong leader who has complete authority over the followers. Umar has to deal with the fact that the caliphate is without wealth, the people are starving, and there is no police force to keep order among the masses. The series is also strongly focused on the need for justice. While the early caliphate had a just distribution of wealth, this no longer exists among the masses. As the series progresses, Umar has to enforce strict justice among the people, using force if necessary. The Omar series depicts the conditions of the late Islamic period in a manner that makes the character of the Prophet (peace be upon him) and his companions familiar to modern Arab viewers. The story also gives a variety of characters a voice, making the Rashidun period of Islam more real to the modern viewer. Alfred Klausner of the University of Chicago said in a review of the series that the main story of Umar being a just, courageous and righteous ruler, was important in the contestation over the caliph's legitimate rule. The Omar series was awarded the best drama series trophy in Qatar's renowned TV festival "Awraq" in 2009. Omar received the first place in the role of the next to the most virtuous man after Allah. The series had been widely praised for accurate descriptions of the Islamic sects that were prominent in the early Islamic period, including Shiism, Sunnism and Kharjism. The series also captured the spectacular role of the caliphs in the eyes of the masses, as people gave the story great popularity and very high ratings. This led to a debate among Shiites on the question of the validity of votes for the third caliph, Uthman (may Allah be pleased with him).

The fifth segment of series is the fourth Caliphate. In this segment, the story of the Islamic caliphate again reaches another scene. In this segment, the story of the caliphate is shown from the battle of Al-Qadi Iwas (after the death of Omar Ibn Khattab), and follows the life of Umar Ibn Al Khattab. In this segment of series, viewers also get to see the life of Umar ibn Khattab, even though this is the minor story line in the series. Through this segment, many episodes are dedicated to the story of Umar ibn Khattab. Farouk Omar is a historical Arab series co-produced (2012) by MBC1 and Qatar TV and directed by Hatem Ali, which is based on one of the best companions of Prophet Muhammad (Peace be upon him) and the 2nd Caliph of the Islamic State, Umar Ibn Al-Khattab (May Allah be pleased with him). Omar was first shown in summer 2012 during Ramadan. After that the TV series was subtitled in English. It used to be possible to watch it for free on the official MBC channel however, it is not possible anymore. I have no idea why MBC does not allow it anymore. The links are constantly changing MBC has a reputation of publishing the best Arab drama in the region. Omar Series, which hit the screens in Ramadan, the most holy month of the year in Islam, is a good reflection of MBC's commitment to bring the best to its audience in all respects of entertainment including showcasing the best stories from the country and region. Therefore, we request people from all over the world to download Omar Series and support by giving your valuable comments and feedback to MBC. We also request media companies, bloggers, and other media organization to follow the news about Omar Series and praise the channel for its efforts. Sec8ef588b
