Malayalam Film Songs Old Free Download

the internet has dramatically changed the world of music. the first wave of mp3 players was introduced in 1999.

this has created a new way of consuming music by making it available for free or for very little cost. with file sharing through p2p networks, people can share music without having to pay for each copy. the internet has also had a positive effect on music downloads. people are now more in a hurry to have the music they like, even if they are willing to pay for it. free software is open source software that has a licence that gives users freedom. the word free means the software is available for use without any payment. this does not mean that it is not expensive. it is as expensive as you want it to be. the same technology can be applied to other forms of culture. in the same way that wikipedia is the largest encyclopaedia, and malayalam songs are the largest of malayalam films, the internet has become the largest repository of information on movies and other forms of culture. if one wants to learn about cinema, one can access all the information on the internet in a matter of seconds. and unlike other forms of culture, there are no gatekeepers who can prevent the information being spread to the public. they can not prevent information from reaching the public, no matter how much they try. this is why wikipedia is an open source encyclopaedia. anyone can access all its contents for free, and with little effort. copyright owners can't prevent it.
