The Trivial Pursuit solitaire has the question pool divided into different topics, each with its own deck. To mix things up, you can use the 3 pack--which can go as high as the entire pool of questions--and view the questions in various different topics. Other things you can do is to set a score limit to your game and set the random number of cards per question on a sliding scale. All of these, with the exception of Trivial Pursuit 2000, are very similar games. However, you can expect that the later versions are more difficult than the earlier versions, and the game play is very similar, but with additional new features. The latest version, Trivial Pursuit 2K2, can be downloaded from the Trivial Pursuit website (note that this link only works if you're trying to download the 3.0 version). You can also find the latest Trivial Pursuit 2K2 on Google Play . There are other Trivial Pursuit products for smartphone applications, and most of them are much more advanced than the old tripe board and dice games. For example, the latest edition of Trivial Pursuit for iPhone is basically a trivia game that lets you play against friends. You simply enter your friend's Trivial Pursuit information, and the phone creates a score for each section and a total score for the game. You have to buy software to play online at any of the levels that are available, but if you purchase the standard Trivial Pursuit Genus Edition from Zylom Games you will receive 400 questions and three game modes: Board Game, Traditional Trivia and Flash Trivia. Zylom Games offers standard release availability on Windows systems, Mac systems, Android systems and iOS systems. This is the version of the software that you can play on your computer. 5ec8ef588b
